OVATIONS FOR THE LEADERS.

Final Speakers on the Pending Bill.

"The Evening World" will issue a late Extra this evening, giving the resuit of the House vote on the Tariff bill.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The tariff debate on the Wilson bill, which has occupied the attention of the House for four weeks, closed to-day with an unamendment was lost. rivalled burst of oratory, Crisp, Reed and Wilson, the giants of the House, came forward in the closing hours to prosecute and defend the great issue— the inauguration of a new economic system in the greatest republic of the Attracted by the anticipation of the field day and the speeches of the leaders, the Washington populace turned out en masse to witness it. Long before 10 o'clock the public galleries were black with people. Behind the seats, banked against the doors and walls, were others straining to get sight of the arena below. The reserved galleries also were thronged, and even in the Presi-

Hence, also, there had been recovered and was about to the future of the future of the future of the future. The police made their way to the it and replaced the clock and forced k the crowd.

Fillbustering Goes On.

Mr. Lockwood was again on his feet fighting for time. He submitted a parliamentary inquiry as to whether. If the Committee placed a prohibitive duty on barley, a yea and nay vote could be secured in the House.

The Chairman replied sharply that he could not bind the Speaker by his decision, but that a yea and nay vote could be secured if the demand was seconded by the constitutional one-fifth of the

As Noon Approached.

Mr. Tawney, of Minnesota, offered an amendment to make the duty 30 cents per bushel, and it, 100, fell by the way-side, but the purpose for which the fill-bustering had been inaugurated was successful. The seconds were ticking away. The two hands of the clock opposite the Speakers' chair were pointing to noon as the tellers took their places on this motion.

Before the vote could be taken, Chairman Richardson repress tooks.

Before the vote could be taken, Chair-man Richardson rapped loudly for or den.
"The hour of 12 o'clock having arrived," said he, "the Committee will now rise and report this bill to the House,"

Final Battle Begins.

One woman in the elevator finding that she could not get out, and that the elevator hung at the top unable to discharge its burden, sobbed hysterically and then fainted.

A large man fought desperately at the upper middle door of the gallery for admission, and, failing to make headway, jumped on the backs of the crowd and scrambled over them, crushing hats and smashing heads until landed within the walls of the chamber.

The officers were powerless to keep the crowd in subjection. The force of police, while largely auxmented, was wholly inadequate. The officers were themselves crowded into corners, and their orders went unheeded by the excited propole.

The police discovered that pickpockets were taking advantage of the crush to

The storm is of slight energy, and extends as far west as the lakes and over Northern New York. It will pass off this evening, and clear, colder weather, with northwest winds, will follow. The temperature will remain stationary today.

The Speaker reascended the rostrum and the gavel was passed to him. Mr. Richardson moved around to the area in front of the Speaker's chair, and, according to parliamentary formula, reported that the Committee of the Whole had had under consideration House Bill 4.864 (Tariff bill), and reported it to the House with sundry amendments. The speaker then announced that three hours would be allowed for closing debate. "The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Maine," said the Speaker, with a last rap of the gavel.
